

Oscar León

Guatemala City, Guatemala

Oscar León is a livestock production specialist and agricultural business administrator with over 10 years of experience in the cattle industry. He has worked in both Guatemala and Brazil, focusing on the management of beef and dairy operations, as well as providing technical consulting services aimed at improving productivity and profitability in livestock systems.

León currently manages his family's cattle operations and leads LAVAT S.A., a company that imports and distributes innovative animal health and nutrition products tailored to the needs of the Guatemalan livestock sector. His professional experience includes the development of rotational grazing programs, intensive feedlot finishing systems, and cost-effective ration formulation strategies based on technical and economic performance.

León integrates technology, applied financial analysis, and field-level advisory services to deliver practical, measurable solutions for cattle producers. His experience reflects a deep understanding of livestock systems, combining hands-on knowledge with a strategic business vision to support sustainable growth in the Guatemalan cattle industry.
